The Cora DiBrazzà Foundation Presents the

Towards Unity Memory Parlor

Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, July 19, 2023

Celebrating the 175th anniversary of the Seneca Falls Convention for women's rights

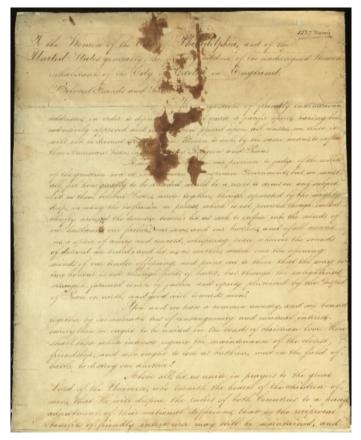

"'United Together, With an Enlightened Judgment and a Feeling Heart': How American and British Women Spoke Out Against War in 1846"

Wendy E. Chmielewski

Background:

In the 1840s Great Britain and the United States came close to war over where to place the border between Canada and the Oregon Territory (claimed by the US). In 1846 citizens in the two countries exchanged over 30 "Friendly Addresses" trying to counter the belligerency of their respective governments. Several of these petitions were from women in one country to women in the opposing country. The one surviving Friendly Address, from the women of Exeter, England to the women of Philadelphia is housed at the Swarthmore College Peace Collection, Swarthmore, PA.

Objective: An examination of how a document, the Exeter Friendly Address of 1846, allows us to understand how shifting borders – including those of geography, cultural, social, race, class, and gender – in the mid-1840s opened a window for some American and British women to comment publicly on peace, government and foreign policy.

From the Letter heading the Friendly Address of the women of Exeter, England to the women of Philadelphia

A Service of the serv	A considering made some	be maintained, and
I that under the bear	ige influence of Race , 40	be come of Rolligion
and lested way	brughest, and these love give	to hearing har how their
" house hearing	to the wednesses of the do blade	feel porivol, facesold p
The Ropher when	nation shall not lift up	the several against, our
and the people who	Il lease was no more
	With sendements of sin	consequent with 6 1111
Destet, 20 by April 504	a Huse	Riends and History
	11.11.25
Radel Sperker -	Chrabith Rose.	, Baria Suffers
Elizabeth Smit	The Shippord	Man Sugar
Vind. Aller	6 blowns.	Jany & Bury
lack brigge	At Mardy	Matilde Burntly
Unelett. Miliam Bett		Mary from holden
Abjelett Beneredge	Sara Brittett.	Styr- Reverses and
Most L. S. Sunden	Sout hillest	Chystall Byens
May for him	18 800	Jung behavior
farmer Spy blooms.	· Such f. Borney.	Land Stane
He dies.	Totale garrer	They flored
Algan Musty	herry daniely	Semest poppey
My to Sacrat:	A. S. Souther	User Asrany.
Curden Contain	Jali Boisin	After Tambing
The Adveta-	& flowing	Agree hollen
Some Solvett	L'Emper	Jacan I bothler
Tuity Maiching;	Am havi	George Rolled
Wille Dinner	Air & Showell	Addla day

Exeter Friendly Address

Quotation #1:

"It may not be within our province to judge of the merits of the question now at issue between our respective governments . . . Let us then, beloved Sisters, unite together . . . in using the influence we possess, which is not powerless though exerted chiefly around the domestic hearth. . . . and let us as mothers watch over . . . our tender offspring and point out . . . that the way to true honour is not through fields of battle, but through the enlightened, straight-forward, course of justice and equity."

Quotation #2:

"We hold it to be the duty of Women, to look with an attentive eye upon the great events which are transpiring around them; in order that with an enlightened judgment, as well as with a feeling heart, they may direct the force of their moral influence against the iniquitous spirit of war. Let us, by the use of the mighty influences that cluster around the domestic hearth, in the opportunity by the wayside, by the pen and the press, bear testimony to the superiority of the law of Christian love and Forgiveness, over that of physical force."

Lucretia Mott

From Letter by Lucretia Mott, from the Friendly Address of the women of Philadelphia to the women of Exeter, England, 1846

Question 1:

What do these quotations say about the role of women in each country? What are the points of similarity and the differences between the two? How do these quotations speak to the role of women participating in peace efforts and foreign relations?

Quotation #3:

"The Oregon question is considered as good as settled. The South has said there shall be no war —and of course there is to be no war. The object of coupling Oregon with Texas . . . was to get Western and Northern votes. . . . Glad as we are to have peace, it is mortifying to be indebted for it to the dictum of the slaveholders, whose only object is the better security of their accursed slave system."

Mary Grew, Editor of The Pennsylvania Freeman, June 18, 1846, p. 3

Question 2:

While the Friendly Address petitions spoke of unity and common purpose between the British and American women, how was the larger context of politics, issues of slavery, and gendered expectations of women's roles also revealed by this campaign against war?

RESOURCES:

Wendy E. Chmielewski "American and British Women Peace Activists," Oxford Handbook on American and British Women Philosophers of the Nineteenth Century, eds. Lydia Moland, et. al. Forthcoming 2023-2024.

"Binding Themselves the Closer to Their Own Peculiar Duties': Gender and Women's Work for Peace, 1818-1860," Peace and Change: Journal of the Peace History Society, October 1995.

"'Mid the Din a Dove Appeared': Women's Work in the Nineteenth-Century Peace Movement," in OverHere: A European Journal of American Culture, Vol. 17, Issue 2, Winter 1997.

Clare Midgley, "British Abolitionism and Feminism in Transatlantic and Imperial Perspective," https://glc.yale.edu/sites/default/files/files/midgley.pdf